How can you help your child be ready for first grade?

Be sure they can state their name, address, phone number and birthday. They should be able to zip, snap, button, and tie clothing and shoes, blow their nose and know how to cover sneezes. They should be able to legibly print their full name as well as the upper and lower case letters of the alphabet. They should be able to read all the words on the kindergarten sight word list. They should be able to count to at least 25 and write numerals. More than anything, if you and your child read together this summer, he or she will be ready to learn in September.

Thank you in advance! We hope you have a restful, healthy and safe summer!
